PRIMEIROS BOCADILLOS

THE YELLOW KID AND HIS NEW PHONOGRAPH.

A Farce, a Comedy and a Tragedy, All In One, Showing How, In Every Case, Murder Will Out, and Virtue is Its Own Reward.

It Showed Every Perfection.

DON'T you think, Mr. Meanitall, that"—
And saintly little Miss De Koltay tried to look her prettiest.

"my new evening gown"

She turned herself about to show its various points of beauty.

"is the loveliest you ever saw?"

Mr. Meanitall was justly celebrated for ever-ready, well-turned compliment.

"Not only, my dear Miss De Koltay, is it the handsomest I have ever seen," he said, "but—"

Her eyes rounded big and bright with anticipation.

"It leaves absolutely nothing"

His eyes roved here and there in eager ecstasy.

"to be desired."

It Was Enough to Kill Her.

THE Summer had not only waned, but had gone for good. The man's wife went to the trunk to get out his Winter underclothes.

Her mind was calm and undisturbed. She was not of what was before her.

The key turned harshly in the lock, emitting a grating sound.

It might have been a prelude of the coming blow, but all unheeding, with a careless gesture, she lifted the lid.

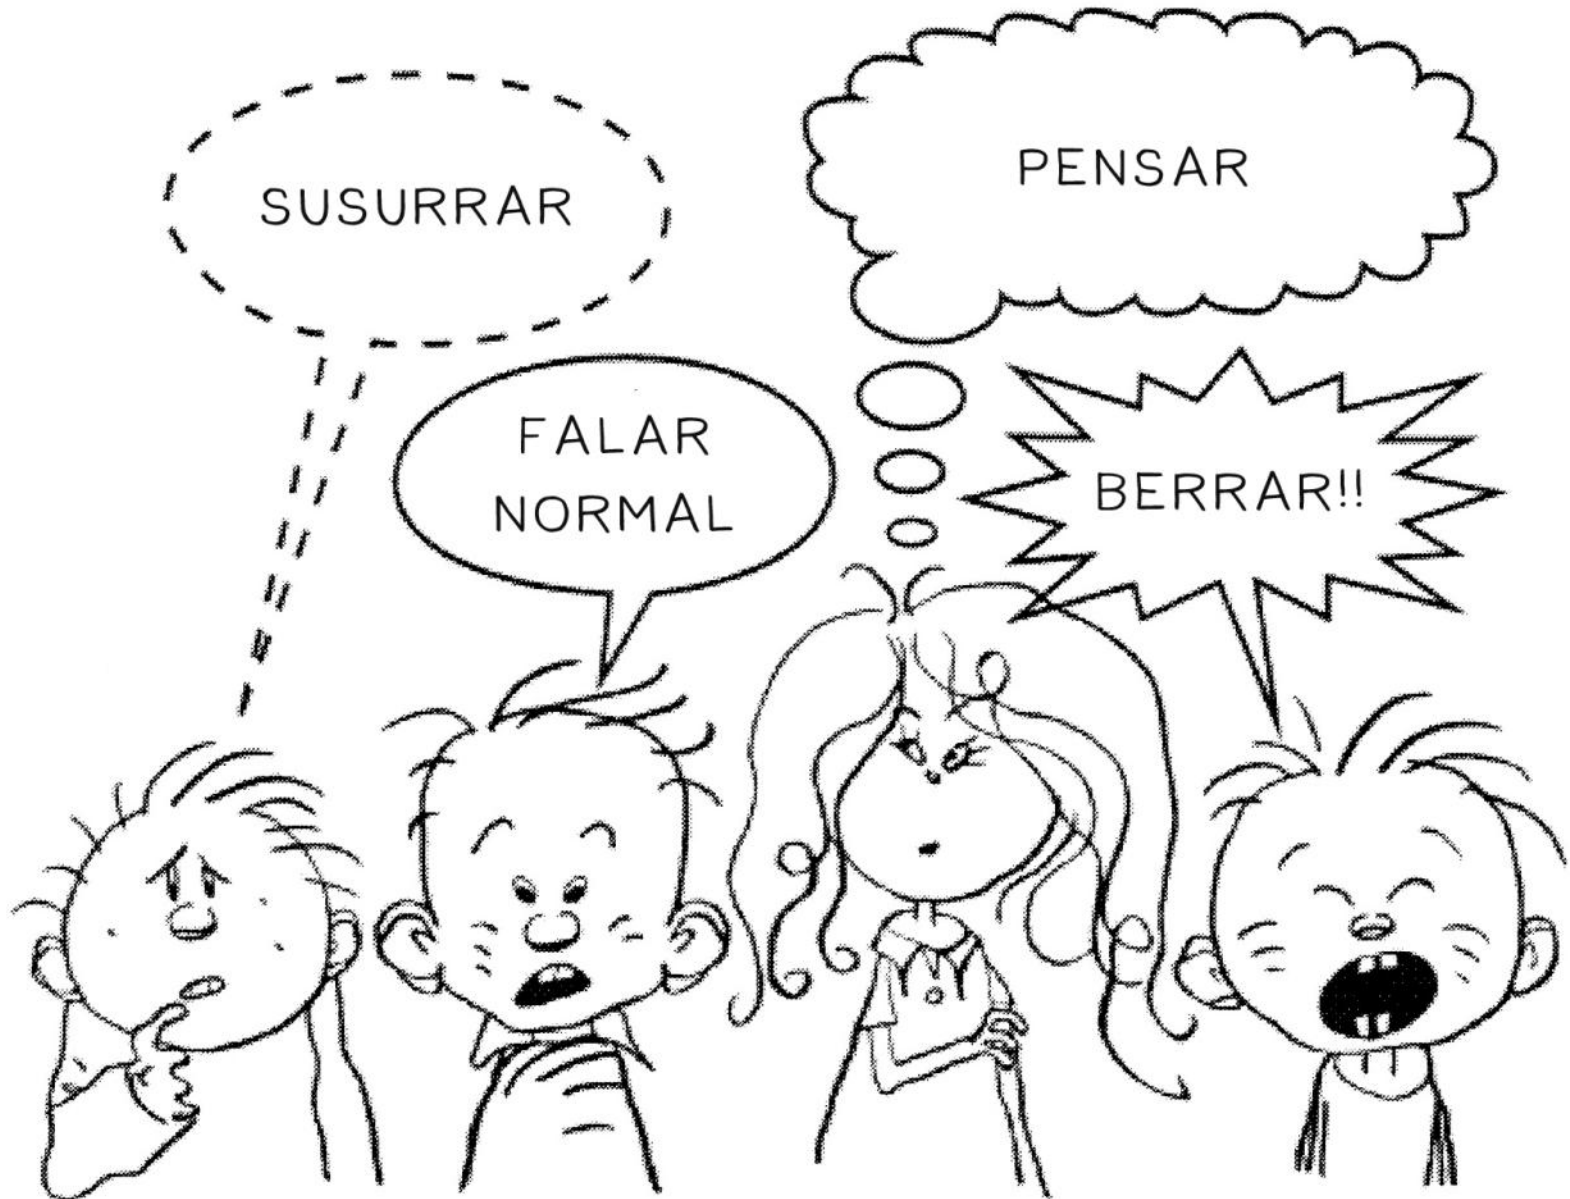

And then a strange thing happened.

With a loud cry, the man's wife started back and sank fainting on the floor.

The shock had been too much for her.

The things she wanted were all on the top, within easy reach!!!
